

Her Legacy, Her Future: Financial Confidence at Every Stage

We encourage you to gather the women in your life—daughters, granddaughters, friends, and colleagues - and join us for this engaging and important conversation.

As women balance competing priorities—building careers, raising families, and caring for loved ones—it is critical they stay engaged and confident in managing their financial futures. Despite being more educated and independent than ever before, many younger women continue to cede financial decision-making authority at rates similar to prior generations.

This conversation will explore how to recognize and address these patterns, and how we can support the next generation in maintaining financial independence, awareness, and confidence.
