

Help Protect Your Identity and Devices

Get more protection against cyberthreats in today's connected world.

WHAT IS IDENTITY THEFT?

Identity theft occurs when someone uses your personal information to pretend to be you to commit fraud or to gain financial benefits, or to do other criminal things in your name, such as:

- Tax-Related ID Theft
- Medical ID Theft
- Social Security ID Theft
- Stealing From Your Savings and Investment Accounts
- Opening New Accounts

COULD IT HAPPEN TO YOU?

Today's connected world is rapidly changing every part of our lives. In the past, personal information was harder to access, but now it may be accessible in many places. It's on our computers, our tablets and our smart phones and, every day, it could be exposed and used by identity thieves. Here are some facts about cybercrime:

- There's a victim of identity theft every two seconds.¹
- Nearly 1 in 4 people experience identity theft.¹
- Over 13 billion records have been lost or stolen through cybercrime in recent years, many included names, addresses, Social Security numbers and more.²
